I have always been drawn to natural and man-made textures, from tree bark to crumbling ancient temple walls. There is something visceral and spiritual when working with texture and layers in art."

Vicki Gaia's mixed media works are created by layering textured papers, plaster, rusted found objects, and whatever is at hand in her studio. While contemporary in nature, Gaia's artwork has a meditative and spiritual quality, which is inspired by her fascination with natural and man-made objects weathered with age. She is an intuitive artist, enjoying the element of surprise when creating her works of art. This work in particular is inspired by her mentor, paper artist Martha Chatelain. She introduced Vicki to papermaking and sparked her love of papers.
